EDITOR'S NOTE

This index is the second of its kind published by the American Society of International Law. The first appeared in 1921 and covered the Society's publications from their beginning in 1907 up to the end of the year 1920 (corresponding to Volumes 1–14). The present volume continues the index beginning with the year 1921 and ending with the year 1940 (corresponding to Volumes 15–34).

In the period from 1921 to 1940 covered by this second index, there has been a general reconsideration of international law and of the development of international relations to an extent which is without parallel in any previous era. Those years witnessed the conclusion of the Peace Treaties of 1919 and the attempts at their enforcement; the establishment of the League of Nations and its many achievements in international coöperation, as well as its shortcomings; the creation of the International Labor Organization alongside the League; the founding of the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague, which was in successful operation for over nineteen years; the signature of the Pact of Paris for the Renunciation of War, and its attempted implementation; and the negotiation of a network of arbitration, conciliation, and non-aggression pacts.

All of the foregoing subjects and many others are treated in detail in the pages of the AMERICAN JOURNAL OF INTERNATIONAL LAW, with supporting documentary texts in the regular and special Supplements. The Supplements also contain the draft conventions, with explanatory comments, prepared by the Harvard Research in International Law as steps in the codification of international law. The annual PROCEEDINGS of the Society contain addresses and discussions by qualified speakers on current questions which have become of importance from year to year. It may be truthfully said that no international incident of consequence which has occurred and no question of international law worthy of mention are omitted from treatment in the Society's publications. In addition, the literature of international law and international relations during this period has been reviewed in the JOURNAL and is analytically indexed by subjects as well as authors, so that the entries under these subject-headings may serve as special bibliographies.

Those who are fortunate enough to have access to a set of the Society's publications from 1921 to 1940 will, with the addition of this index, have for their use a veritable encyclopaedia of international law and international relations during this most critical period of the world's international history.

HOW TO USE THE INDEX

The publications covered by this index are the following:

American Journal of International Law, Volumes 15–34, corresponding to the years 1921–1940.

Supplements to the American Journal of International Law published regularly with each number of the Journal and separately paged and bound.

Special Supplements published in the years 1926, 1928, and 1929, and given volume numbers to correspond with the regular Supplements for those years, namely, Volumes 20, 22 and 23.

Proceedings of the American Society of International Law published annually during the years 1921–1940.

The following abbreviations are used in the index references to indicate these series of publications:

J—American Journal of International Law.
S—Supplement to the American Journal of International Law.
SS—Special Supplement to the American Journal of International Law.
P—Proceedings of the American Society of International Law.

The Journals, Supplements, and Special Supplements are referred to by volume numbers, and each volume is indicated by a heavy-faced numeral following immediately after the letter indicating the series. The page number is given immediately following the volume number. (Example: J, 34, 410.)

The Proceedings, not having volume numbers, are referred to by the year. In references to the Proceedings, the year, therefore, takes the place of the volume number. (Example: P, 1934, 37.)

To indicate the character of certain references, another series of abbreviations has been used where necessary and printed in italic as follows:

Ad—Address; BN—Book note; BR—Book review; CN—Current note; Ed—Editorial comment; JD—Judicial decision; LA—Leading article; Rem—Remarks.

Many other abbreviations have been used to shorten entries, which are self-explanatory. Among them are the following:

A. J. I. L.—American Journal of International Law.
A. S. I. L.—American Society of International Law.
Hague Air Rules and Hague Radio Rules—Rules adopted by the Commission of Jurists at The Hague in 1923.
Int. Am. Com. Jurists—International Commission of Jurists, Rio de Janeiro, 1927.
Int. Conf. Am. States—International Conferences of American States.
P. C. I. J.—Permanent Court of International Justice.
